Some local shops in 1963 and 1987

This page of advertisements, left, appeared in the August 1963 Parish Magazine. It is of interest for several reasons. Taylors shop was only one of several selling groceries, two more appear on this page alone. Grocers could also sell a variety of non-grocery products: Taylors acted as a florist and Turner's shop sold animal foods as well as drapery and hardware. A prominent advertisement is for The Dairy in St Mary's Gate which belonged to G W Count, a local farmer.

Most of the shops listed telephone numbers and so the households who owned telephones could ring to place orders. Only 3 numbers were needed with no local code.

This issue of the Parish Magazine was included in an album of photographs taken by George Read and donated to our Society last year by his daughter. Some of the photographs George took of local shops in 1987 are included below.

The photograph above shows Eastmans, small grocery shop and off-licence at 72 Sunderland Street (formerly Turner's grocers), now a café.

The photograph to the left, now Castlegate Cards, was Castlegate Stores - also an off-licence as well as a grocers and tobacconist.

Now a private house, the photograph below shows a grocery store at 9 Pinfold Lane.

Among other advertisements in the 1963 Parish Magazine were the following:

- Jarvis & Sons grocers in Market Place
- Jarvis & Sons drapers and outfitters in Sunderland Street
- W Watkinson Post Office in Sunderland Street
- L H Gleadall coal & coke merchant in Northgate
- H B Fox tobacconist and newsagent in Market Place
- G Snell newsagent and stationer in Market Place
- F Glasby beef and pork butcher in Market Place
- R E Burke butcher in Northgate
